Overview

The Effective Crisis Communications workshop offers an invaluable learning experience for senior communications professionals. Spanning two days, it explores the intricacies of crisis communication across government sectors. This workshop is tailored to empower participants with robust strategies to tackle various crisis types, emphasising both practical and theoretical aspects.

Participants will engage in interactive modules focused on strategic communication planning, digital media management during crises, and ethical communication practices. These sessions are designed to be hands-on and scenario-based, ensuring that attendees gain real-world insights and skills.

A significant emphasis is placed on ethics and transparency in crisis communication. Professionals will explore the importance of maintaining integrity and clear communication with stakeholders during challenging times. This segment is crucial for building trust and effective public messaging in crisis situations.

The workshop concludes with a focus on post-crisis recovery and future planning. Attendees will learn to evaluate the impact of crises on their organisations and communities, developing forward-thinking strategies for future crisis management. This final module is essential for fostering resilience and preparedness in government communications.
