Overview

Understanding your users and customer centricity is more important than ever as government agencies increase investment in modernisation initiatives and transformation.

A series of surveys has revealed something that we have long suspected, citizens are seeking responsive governments. When it comes to using government services, 81% of citizens expect their requests to be resolved in a single interaction. Meanwhile, more than 85% said that speed, simplicity, convenience and transparency.

Putting customers at the centre and designing services that fit people's lives and skill levels, will not only increase engagement. But it will build trust and lasting connections.

This online course has been designed to give public servants who are striving to improve customer experiences, an opportunity to step into their customers' shoes. It will enable you to reflect on and uncover their needs, motivations, expectations and pain points. These insights can then be used to create seamless interactions and drive meaningful connections.

Through a mix of presentations and activities, this workshop-style session will give you tools, frameworks and insights to unveil your diverse customers. It will enable you to adopt a customer-centric lens and look beyond siloes to deliver seamless interactions.

Pete Saunders Consulting

Pete Saunders calls himself a strategy nerd playing at the intersection of design, experience, technology, and operations. His focus is on improving experience and outcomes through service design, patient mapping, innovation, digital strategy, and commercialisation, working with health and education clients, as well as government at a State and Federal level. Previous work has included:

- The first ever digital strategy for the (then) Victorian Department of Health and Human Services
- A patient experience and innovation roadmap for a multi-site radiology provider in New Zealand
- A five-year roadmap for patient and carer services for Australian impacted by upper GI cancers
- A digital transformation and commercialisation strategy for workplace mental health services provided by one of Australia's best known research organisations
- Service blueprinting and go-to-market strategies for brand new health insurance products.

He has also been COO at TALi Health (ASX:TD1), a software-as-a-medical-device company, and previously founded and commercialised a health-tech start up. His diverse work experience and background in design, marketing, and advertising gives Pete a unique perspective and a variety of tools to effectively solve challenging and impactful problems in complex systems. This results in improved outcomes for those who need it the most.
